THE DAILY BULLETIN.

Pledged to neither Sect nor Party,
But Established for the Benefit of All.

FRIDAY, MARCH 17, 1893.

The Advertiser is in great distress over the alleged mingling of heathenism with Christian worship by Hawaiians. Christian whites set them the example if it is the case. How many of the "enlightened" races are there who put faith for good luck in the "horseshoe on the door"? There is not a church edifice in Honolulu in which God is not worshipped by images.

The morning padded sheet has recourse to the village gossip style of lying in the following paragraph:

The Advertiser's informant stated he was assured by other Hawaiians that the ex-Queen patronized kahuna. He believed, from all he could learn, that she was one of those who worshipped Jehovah and the heathen gods as well.

What splendid evidence that would be in a court of law! "My aunt's cousin's sister-in-law told me that her grand nephew Jim said that he was sure that Snooks stole the money that he paid for his wife's new hat." Verdict guilty!

The New York Nation is among the journals of the United States which do not approve of the methods by which Hawaiian annexation is sought to be accomplished. There is a formidable list of leading organs of public opinion in the States on the side of a fair deal to all the inhabitants of the islands. Harper's, Frank Leslie's, Chicago Herald, New York World, New York Post, and many influential papers in the four quarters of the Union, are with the civil rights cause. Our morning contemporary's assumption that all the brains of America are enlisted on the contrary side is only to be compared with the ostrich's resource of hiding its head in the sand. The Advertiser puts its head in a sack.

THE ENVOY'S PRECIS.

The conclusion of Mr. Neumann's statement to the United States Government, as the envoy of Queen Liliuokalani, appears in to-day's issue. To those who may have expected Mr. Neumann to depend on "lawyer talk" in Washington the document will be disappointing. He gives official documents linked together with but little commentary. The precis disposes of the reports that the envoy was going to Washington to make the best financial terms for the Queen as compensation for the loss of her Crown. Its most important feature, however, is its clear presentation of the truth of the revolution matter—namely, that the Queen was deposed three clear days after she had abandoned the project of proclaiming a new Constitution, and that the act of deposition was accomplished through the interposition of the United States naval forces. The movement was essentially that of the United States Government, working over the shoulders of local revolutionists, to bring to a culmination the scheme of annexation which Minister Stevens was sent here to promote and, if possible, to secure the consummation of. It is well that the people of the United States have had the true inwardness of the event presented to them. It should now be for them to say whether the acquisition of the islands shall become registered in history on the basis prepared in the manner now described, or whether time shall be taken to have the bonds of connection established in honorable union rather than on the basis of conquest.

STRANGE COMBINATIONS.

Family Relationships That Beat the Fourteen-Fifteen Puzzle.

The strangest combination resulting from the marriage of relatives that we have ever heard of is that in the family of Lewis Osborne, who has recently removed to Pomona from Selma, Fresno county. Mr. Osborne tells us that he has been ten years trying to unravel the perplexities of relationship that his second marriage has caused. In 1888 he married a young widow, who was his own grandfather's third wife. The couple have a little son.

Given this simple statement, and a number of peculiar family relationships may be deduced. For example, Mr. Osborne is a grandchild of his wife. His son being also a son of his (Osborne's) grandmother, is uncle to his own father. Osborne becomes a brother to his uncles and aunts, and also a stepfather to them. The boy, being the child of Osborne as a grandson, is thereby a great-grandson of his own mother, while his father may rejoice in the title of great-grandfather to his own child. Thus the boy becomes a granduncle to himself and his parents' great-grandchild. Osborne is the boy's father and great-grandfather at the same time, and, being the husband of his own grandmother, enjoys the distinction of being his own grandfather as well.

Osborne's mother married a man named Blake and his sister married a brother-in-law of her mother, Henry Blake. Osborne's sister becomes a sister to her own mother. Mrs. Blake, being Osborne's mother, is grandmother to Osborne's son. The latter, however, being a son of the wife of Mrs. Blake's father-in-law, is therefore a brother to his grandmother and granduncle to his grandmother's sister, the daughter who married Mrs. Blake's brother-in-law. He also is her nephew, as the son of her brother. Osborne is the younger Mrs. Blake's grandfather as well as her brother. Thus her nephew, Osborne's son, becomes uncle to his aunt, being a son of her grandmother. The series of relationships may be likewise traced almost indefinitely. The family are happy and contented, and live as pleasantly as though the peculiar family ties were not present.—Pomona Progress.

That "White Trash."

EDITOR BULLETIN:—The phrase "poor white trash" which occurs in an editorial of this morning's Advertiser reminds me of the phrase "mean whites" so extensively used by the planters of the South before the war. The newly coined phrase of the local organ of a discontented oligarchy comes from a source where cognomens are placed in a necessary order of inversion just now. For "trash," read "Independent."

The organ and its party have managed to harness a number of "whites"—badly in want of fodder—and they look and are probably looked upon by the occupants of the missionary state-coach as a cheap kind of mule; but a time is near at hand when a rude awakening, jostling and rumbling of the coach is going to shake up the editor and his pupils. Even now the premonitions of impending fate is upon them, and the hawking round of petitions begging for names to support the "P. G. and annexation" is ominous and the consequent disappointment and not-know-which-way-to-turn predicament may be pleaded in extenuation of the present season of tearing hair and using bad language.

AMERICAN.

The Tiser and Harper's.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—The Advertiser appears much worried and alarmed at the stand taken by Harper's Weekly on the annexation scheme. If the last news from Washington created such sad havoc in the Advertiser camp how will they be able to stand the more crushing news next to arrive? It is those solid facts as stated in Harper's Weekly, of the manner in which our revolution was accomplished, that is troubling the soul of the Advertiser. Harper's Weekly, as well as hundreds of other leading papers in the United States, want and demand that fair play and justice be given to Hawaii; this suits not the Advertiser, therefore its weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth. Surely the Advertiser has cause for alarm, likewise Minister Stevens. When will the Advertiser learn that honesty of purpose lives eternal, while dishonesty of purpose lives only for a while, as in the present case and method of annexation. "The way of the transgressor is hard."

CIVIL SERVICE.

Terrible Distress in England.

LONDON, February 27.—No such destitution as exists in Oldham, owing to the prolonged struggles between the cotton masters and operatives, has prevailed since the war in the United States, when the scarcity of cotton closed the mills. Thousands are out of food and fuel. At a meeting of cotton operatives of Oldham to-day a resolution was passed calling upon the Government to endeavor to secure an international agreement upon the re-assembly of the Brussels conference to the effect that all the mints of the world be open to the unrestricted coinage of gold and silver.

Three days is a very short time in which to cure a bad case of rheumatism; but it can be done, if the proper treatment is adopted, as will be seen by the following from James Lambert, of New Brunswick, Ills: "I was badly afflicted with rheumatism in the hips and legs, when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It cured me in three days. I am all right to-day; and would insist to anyone who is afflicted with that terrible disease to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm and get well at once." 50 cent bottles for sale by all dealers. Hawaiian Hardware Co., L'd

Saturday, March 11, 1893.

A prominent buyer remarked in our store when he saw a big lot of Helvetia Belting being shipped to a plantation, "You have about everything in this store that is used on plantations except the machinery." This remark is pleasant to our ears coming as it does from a man whose business is to "buy things."

For the last year we have been striving to complete our stock, to have it so that a man will not have to go elsewhere to get what is needed for either his home or plantation. The Helvetia Belting was the one thing needful to complete our lines and just why we have delayed getting it is one of those things "no fellow can find out." But we have it now and your wants in this direction will be filled by us with the same mutual profit and small cost to you that characterises all of our goods.

We have lately added to our stock a large assortment of Carriage Supplies, Top Leather, Collar Leather, White Cotton Duck, Dash and Saddle Leather. For months and months we have been supplying the trade with Harness Leather in red and black; the other lines have recently been added on account of numerous calls from our customers. Carriage Top Dressing and Neal's Carriage Paints have been a staple article with us since our doors were first thrown open to the public and an invitation for a share of its patronage extended. That it has been a successful line with us is shown by our increased stock and spreading out of lines.

We intimated last week that the damp weather would not last forever; the blinding dust on the thoroughfares is proof of our prophecy and an indication of the approach of the windmill season. Last year we offered you the galvanized mill as an improvement over the painted one of the previous year. It was a step in advance of the windmill times. This year we show you, and sell you the galvanized steel tower, either fixed or tilting, which appears to cap the climax of all improvements. There seems to be nothing left for the manufacturers to do—they've reached the par excellence of windmills, and you know it. If there was as great an improvement in the system of collections here the average merchant would have sun on both sides of the street. Our office boy puts it this way:

The wind bloweth
The water floweth
The farmer soweth
The customer oweth
And the Lord knoweth
That we are in need of our dues.

To try and be cunning
And quick "come-a-running,"
Ere we go to Luning,
We're not "a fuming"
This thing of dunning
Would give us the everlasting blues.

The following choice bit of word painting occurs in Hawthorne's Marble Faun:

"Women are they of what earthly rank they may, however gifted with intellect or genius, or endowed with awful beauty, have always some little handicraft ready to fill the tiny gap of every vacant moment. A needle is familiar to the fingers of them all. A queen, no doubt, plies it on occasion; the woman poet can use it as adroitly as her pen; the woman's eye, that has discovered a new star, turns from its glory to send the polished thread instrument gleaming along the hem of her kerchief, or to darn a casual fray in her dress. And they have greatly the advantage of us in this respect. The slender thread of silk or cotton keeps them united with the small, familiar, gentle interests of life, the continually operating influences of which do so much for the health of the character, and carry off what would otherwise be a dangerous accumulation of morbid acerbity. A vast deal of human sympathy runs along this electric line, striding from the throne to the wicker chair of the humblest seamstress, and keeping high and low in a species of communion with their kindred beings."

Housewives, while you ply the needle, have you ever reflected on the importance of the needle? See to it that your husbands provide for the future welfare of their families by at once applying for a Policy in the EQUITABLE LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY of the United States. No more suitable gift could be offered to you.
